Fictional document — demonstration example

This document is produced by the Blue Lemon Agent website to illustrate what an AI agent hands to its users. The companies, matters, amounts and people in it are invented. It has no legal, accounting or commercial value.

Fictional document, produced for the demonstration. The ceiling was not the executive committee's curiosity, it was the delay: at nine days a question, you ask forty a quarter and settle the rest on instinct.

Breakdown of the nine working days

Step	Duration	What produced it
Management-control queue	2 days	Two people, every request in the company
Finding the right source and writing the query	3 days	Seven sources, no written definitions
Formatting	1 day	Export, spreadsheet, colours, scales

Step	Duration	What produced it
Answering « what does this figure include? »	3 days	The scope did not travel with the figure
Total	9 working days	—

The measured shift on the three items

Item	Before	With the agent	What the remaining time becomes
Getting a quantified answer	60 % of the time of an analysis request	7 %	Framing the question, reading the answer
Producing the visualisation	35 %	5 %	Reviewing the visual
Checking a figure's scope	30 %	4 %	Reading a scope sheet that is already written
End-to-end delay	9 working days	Under 4 minutes	—

> The figure that matters to an executive team is not about time but about decisions: 40 quantified questions a quarter before, 1,460 in the first quarter with the agent. That is not the same way of running a company.

The recommended deployment order

Step	Why this order
1. Arbitrate the 9 competing definitions	Opening before arbitrating would mean handing three margins to five people

Step	Why this order
2. Open access to the 5 branch managers	Each sees his region and the group averages
3. Spend the time regained on variance analysis	That is where management control is worth most

For the executive team to settle

Date access opens to branch managers: _____
