Fictional document — demonstration example

This document is produced by the Blue Lemon Agent website to illustrate what an AI agent hands to its users. The companies, matters, amounts and people in it are invented. It has no legal, accounting or commercial value.

Fictional document, produced for the demonstration. Translation and social publishing belong to dedicated agents. This document sets out what the newsletter agent passes them and what each returns — the point is not the split, it is that all three start from the version you settled.

Who picks up what, from which version

Agent	Receives	Produces	Approved by
Newsletter agent	Period content, criteria, template	The composed issue, subject line and hooks	Editorial lead
Translation agent	The approved issue, the voice guide, the map of English pages	Complete English issue, links switched	Export manager

Agent	Receives	Produces	Approved by
Social media agent	The approved feature article, the post format	1 LinkedIn post + 2 scheduled follow-ups	Communications officer

What translation flags rather than hides

Case	Number	Handling
Items with an English page	6 of 9	Link switched automatically
Replacement proposed	2 items from the reserve	Guides already translated, undated subjects
Legal notices and unsubscribe	All	Translated, unsubscribe link kept live

The delay, before and after

Deliverable	Before	After
French issue	Day 0	Day 0
English version	4 to 6 days later, when it went out at all	Same day
Social post	Often never	Same day, with 2 scheduled follow-ups

Why the social post is not a copy of the issue: a post that says « read our newsletter » does not get read. The social media agent draws a stand-alone piece from the feature article, one that stands on its own and points at the page, not at the send.
