Fictional document — demonstration example

This document is produced by the Blue Lemon Agent website to illustrate what an AI agent hands to its users. The companies, matters, amounts and people in it are invented. It has no legal, accounting or commercial value.

Fictional document, produced for the demonstration. The firm, its clients, its documents and its figures were invented; they illustrate a situation common in management consultancy and describe no real client. The licences cited are invented for the example; the legal principles they illustrate are real and cited.

The question is almost never “can this source technically be read”. It is “what may lawfully be loaded into holdings that 44 people query”. The two answers do not coincide, and it is the second that commits the firm.

What each source allows

Source	What the licence opens	Loaded into the holdings	What is done instead, where applicable
Filed annual accounts	Open reuse; a filing amounts to publication	Yes — the most recent for each company followed	Financial year and filing date carried with the figure

Source	What the licence opens	Loaded into the holdings	What is done instead, where applicable
The firm's in-house application notes	Property of Veriane Conseil	Yes — 184 notes	Citable without reservation, passage included
Publisher's standards catalogue	Named consultation	No	Pointer to the reference and the exact location; the consultant opens it with their own access
Subscription sector studies	Consultation and short quotation with attribution	Yes, as references	The figure is cited with publisher and year, never copied in volume
Deliverables received from another firm	No right acquired	No	Kept on file, outside the query scope

The line that required checking, and here is its basis: loading the standards catalogue into searchable holdings would amount to extracting a substantial part of a protected database. Article L342-1 of the French intellectual property code gives a database producer the right to prohibit the extraction of all or of a qualitatively or quantitatively substantial part of its contents — Légifrance, article L342-1, text consulted on 07/09/2026. The publisher's terms say the same, but the principle does not depend on them.

For the partners' committee to decide: the publisher sells an internal indexing licence. 184 of the catalogue entries are already covered by your application notes; the decision therefore concerns the remainder, not the whole.
