Fictional document — demonstration example
This document is produced by the Blue Lemon Agent website to illustrate what an AI agent hands to its users. The companies, matters, amounts and people in it are invented. It has no legal, accounting or commercial value.

Fictional document, produced for the demonstration. The firm, its clients, its documents and its figures were invented; they illustrate a situation common in management consultancy and describe no real client. The items are not deleted from the firm's file store: the professional retention obligation keeps running. What ceases is the agent's reading of them.

The three operations, and why the third matters as much as the other two

Operation	Volume	Carried out on	What would happen if it were omitted
Documents removed from scope	148 items	04/06 · 09:12	The content would stay searchable
Destruction of the index built on those items	148 entries	04/06 · 09:12	The content would stay searchable without the file being there — the withdrawal would be fictitious

Operation	Volume	Carried out on	What would happen if it were omitted
Marking of the citations already served	37 answers from the quarter	04/06 · 09:14	Links would lead nowhere while suggesting the source still exists

What the 37 answers concerned now carry: the note “source removed from scope on 04/06/2026”, in place of the link. A dead citation is worse than an absent one: it suggests the source is still there.

The withdrawal log

Element	Value
Requested by	Client Sartorel, at engagement closure
Authorised by	Methods team
Scope	148 items of the Sartorel file
Professional retention	Unchanged — the items remain in the firm's file store

This is the document the client asks for, and it is ready before they ask. It states what stopped being read, what remains retained, and by whom each act was authorised.
