Fictional document — demonstration example

This document is produced by the Blue Lemon Agent website to illustrate what an AI agent hands to its users. The companies, matters, amounts and people in it are invented. It has no legal, accounting or commercial value.

Fictional document, produced for demonstration. Only one of the four flags led to an act by the agent, and that act is a reversible hiding, not a deletion.

#	Flag	What triggered it	Agent's act	Recipient	Chase
1	Third party's personal data	Number and address of a person absent from the thread	Hidden pending review	Moderator	4 h
2	39 removals on a ground absent from the rules	"off topic"	None	Community lead	7 d
3	Message reported 12 times, online 40 h	Queue not worked at weekends	None	On-call moderator	4 h
4	7 messages in a regional language flagged	Filter does not recognise the language	None	Whoever tunes the filter	7 d

Where the exception stops

Situation	Hidden?	Why
Third party's personal data, not party to the thread	Yes	The person chose nothing
Insult between two members	No	Both chose to write here
Criticism of the company	No	**—
A remark the agent would find violent	No	That would be a judgement
Message reported twenty times	No	The number characterises nothing

The four decisions that stay with the community — and what is already prepared for them

The decision that stays yours	What I hand you to take it, and what you gain
Deleting a message	The message hidden, timestamped and kept: a challenge is examined on the record and you have nothing to reconstruct
Banning a member	Their history and the decisions already made on their messages: the community settles it on the facts rather than on an impression
Characterising a remark in law	The remark, its date, its context and the comparable decisions: your adviser characterises it in one reading instead of an inquiry
Adopting a rule	I write it and run it over the history: you see what it would have held before adopting it. A rule defines what people agree to hear — it is voted on, and the drafting is already done
