Fictional document — demonstration example

This document is produced by the Blue Lemon Agent website to illustrate what an AI agent hands to its users. The companies, matters, amounts and people in it are invented. It has no legal, accounting or commercial value.

Fictional document, produced for demonstration. A mandate is a written, capped, dated authorisation, withdrawable in one word: it states exactly what the agent executes alone. It is signed once and changed in one sentence.

|---------------------------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Scope                           | The 9 categories of the chosen plan, the 143 referenced suppliers, and nothing beyond |
| Overall cap                     | €4.58M for the quarter                                                                |
| Per-order cap                   | €25,000 — above that, presented for signature                                         |
| Orders above the per-order cap  | 14 of 218, ranked by urgency                                                          |
| Term                            | Until 30/06                                                                           |
| Withdrawal                      | In one word, at any moment, including from a phone                                    |
| Trail                           | Issue logged: who covered it, which plan, which contract, to the second               |
| Time to execute after signature | 6 minutes for the 204 covered orders                                                  |

The mandate puts the decision where it belongs: procurement settles the plan, the scope and the caps — strategy work — and the execution of the 204 orders that follow mechanically takes six minutes rather than a week for two people.
