Fictional document — demonstration example

This document is produced by the Blue Lemon Agent website to illustrate what an AI agent hands to its users. The companies, matters, amounts and people in it are invented. It has no legal, accounting or commercial value.

Fictional document, produced for demonstration. All four flags concern figures the agent produces itself.

#	Flag	On what	Handling
1	Same indicator: 847 and 912	2 reports	Definition written beside each figure
2	3% gap on rerun	Same period	Production date carried by each report
3	3 branches counted as zero	34 branches	Average over 31, written as such
4	No recipient can redo the calculations	41 reports	Definition, sources, rows set aside supplied

The five rules that make a report defensible — and what they earn you

The rule	What you gain
Missing data stays visible	An average over 31 branches written as such, rather than 34 with 3 counted as zero: you decide on the right figure, and you know who to chase
The figure is delivered, the reading stays yours	A fall is good or bad depending on what was decided: the report arrives ready, and the commentary stays the board's
An indicator per person opens on your request	Once opened it arrives with its query and its recipient: you get it with its framework, and it stands up to whoever challenges it
A rate is published with its denominator	Without a denominator it is a different figure: your slide survives the question that follows
Charts start at zero	A scale that flatters a movement turns against you the next quarter: your 41 reports tell the same story from one month to the next
