Fictional document — demonstration example

This document is produced by the Blue Lemon Agent website to illustrate what an AI agent hands to its users. The companies, matters, amounts and people in it are invented. It has no legal, accounting or commercial value.

Fictional document, produced for demonstration. Every deadline is shown with the act that starts it, its date, its manner of service and the exhibit establishing it. Assessing the period and characterising it remain with the legal department and its counsel, to whom the whole material of the computation is handed.

What every line of the schedule carries

Element	Why it is there
File and party concerned	Attachment and assignment
Starting act, nature and date	Starting point of the computation
Manner and date of service	Shifts the date by a day in one case out of four — never carried by a spreadsheet
Period stated by the act	Reproduced word for word, with its page

Element	Why it is there
Applicable procedural timetable	In the most recent version filed, with the date of that version
Resulting date	Presented as the outcome of a computation, elements lined up above
Exhibit numbers	One per element

The four divergences with the hand-kept spreadsheet

Divergence	Origin	Effect
Two deadlines missing	Acts received on the 14th and 22nd, never carried over	One falls in 19 days
One date entered a day out	Service effected the day after the act was signed	Date corrected
One date taken from a replaced timetable	More recent timetable filed in the case	Exchange brought forward by three weeks

What is coming

Horizon	Deadlines	Spread
Within 15 days	3	All assigned to a lawyer and to counsel
Within 60 days	12	4 files, 3 firms
Total listed	61	23 files
Share of time spent on the schedule	30 % → 5 %	Automatic recomputation on every act received

Of the 61 deadlines, 57 dates were validated by counsel without reopening a document, the five elements of the computation being aligned and sourced. The remaining 4 were discussed, which is exactly the useful use of his time.
