Fictional document — demonstration example

This document is produced by the Blue Lemon Agent website to illustrate what an AI agent hands to its users. The companies, matters, amounts and people in it are invented. It has no legal, accounting or commercial value.

Fictional document, produced for the demonstration. The employer approves: risk assessment engages their responsibility and is not delegated to software.

The two actions the agent takes alone

Action	What it protects	Reversible
Chasing an action whose deadline is approaching , at D–7 and again on the day	Follow-through to closure	Yes — the rhythm changes in a word
Opening an update proposal as soon as a trigger event occurs	The document's fidelity to the real work	Yes — opening is not entering; a refusal is kept with its reason

The six events that trigger a proposal

Event	Source watched
-------	----------------

New machine	Invoices and manuals filed
New substance or amended safety data sheet	Product folder
New post or new activity	Organisation chart, schedules
Accident or near miss	Accident register, workshop logbook
Repeated reports on one subject	Reporting channel, emails, minutes
Outside contractor intervening	Quotations and site schedules

What awaits a decision, and from whom

Decision	Who takes it
Approving the document and each update	The owner — the employer approves
Boundaries of the work units	The owner, on a proposal
Rating retained where it differs from the proposal	The owner
Choice and schedule of actions	The owner
Closing an action without evidence	The owner, by reasoned exception
Settling a prevention plan with an outside contractor	The owner and the contractor's manager
Asking for a review	The social and economic committee

What this gives you on inspection day: a current document, ratings that link to dated facts, an action plan closed on evidence, and versions that tell what the company knew, when, and what it did about it.
