Fictional document — demonstration example

This document is produced by the Blue Lemon Agent website to illustrate what an AI agent hands to its users. The companies, matters, amounts and people in it are invented. It has no legal, accounting or commercial value.

Fictional document, produced for the demonstration. The notary reviews and signs: executing a deed and conferring authenticity on it belongs to the public officer.

The two actions the agent takes alone

Action	What it protects	Reversible
Chasing an institution that has not replied , at the rhythm set by the office	The file's timeline	Yes — the rhythm changes in a word, including on open files
Removing from the draft a document whose validity expires before signing , and starting its renewal	The security of the deed	Yes — if signing moves, a document valid again returns to the draft, with its date

What awaits a decision from the office

Act	Who decides
-----	-------------

Sending a document to a third party	The clerk handling the file
Filing a formality	The formalities officer, on the notary's go-ahead
Final wording of a clause	The notary
Advice given to a client	The notary
Executing and signing the deed	The notary — never the agent

Where the files live

Point	How it is held
Location	A machine inside the office, or an isolated resource hosted in France under French law
Outbound traffic	None to a foreign service
Third-party model training	No content used
Access	By role: a clerk sees their files, the notary sees everything
Traceability	Every consultation and every output logged

Professional secrecy does not leave the office because the installation does not allow it — a property of the architecture, verifiable, not a sales promise.
