Fictional document — demonstration example

This document is produced by the Blue Lemon Agent website to illustrate what an AI agent hands to its users. The companies, matters, amounts and people in it are invented. It has no legal, accounting or commercial value.

Fictional document, produced for demonstration. The number of remarks says what a review produces. The number of incidents on reviewed code says what it is worth.

Item	Kept?	What it allows
Remarks and their fate, with the reason	Yes	Withdrawing rules that produce noise
Production incidents traced to reviewed code	Yes	Measuring what the review is worth
Patches produced and what became of them	Yes	Closing a category that drifts
Secret blocks and who lifted them	Yes	A signature
Remarks received per developer	Not by default	Lawful — file supplied on request

The figure no review tool publishes

Finding	Value
Production incidents in six months	7
Whose cause is in code reviewed without a remark	7

What the rejection trace corrected

Finding	Value
Remarks issued	312
Rejected by a reviewer	41
Of which repeating the same false positive	29
Rule withdrawn	1

Without the rejection trace the agent would repeat indefinitely. That is how 89 % of its remarks were about style before an automatic formatter was wired in.

If you open per-developer ranking

It is lawful, the file is supplied. What is said first: a developer ranked on remarks received opens smaller, more numerous merge requests — the problem moves without shrinking.

For the company to settle

Retention period for remarks and their fate: _____ months
