Fictional document — demonstration example

This document is produced by the Blue Lemon Agent website to illustrate what an AI agent hands to its users. The companies, matters, amounts and people in it are invented. It has no legal, accounting or commercial value.

Fictional document, produced for the demonstration. Unclaimed entitlement is the gap between the people entitled to cover and those who obtain it: here it almost always comes from a report never having been made. The agent reclassifies nothing: it matches and hands the file over.

The three matches

Situation spotted	What is compared
Sick leave whose first medical record carries the date of an accident reported and never linked	Sick leave file and accident file of the same establishment
Relapse reported as ordinary illness while a workplace accident appears in the insured person's file	The insured person's history
Employee of an establishment where two comparable accidents were recognised within six months	The establishment's files

What is handed to the caseworker

Element	Content
The match	The two files side by side, with what links them
The information letter to the insured person	Already written: what a workplace accident report is, how it is made, within what time limit, and what it changes for them
What the letter does not do	It recognises nothing and opens no entitlement

The trial, and what it gave

Stage	Volume
Letters sent	60
Insured people who made contact	41
Reports regularised	34
Cases recognised by officers	27
Situations left to handle	154, in three waves a month apart

The measure works both ways: those 27 files belong to occupational risks and not to health insurance. With the link restored, each is charged where it belongs — what the accounting officer and the supervising authority expect of a handling service.

> The files arrive pre-assessed — 4 minutes 30 instead of 27 —, which allows about thirty regularisations a month to be absorbed without reinforcement.

To be settled by the service
