> Fictional document — demonstration example
> This document is produced by the Blue Lemon Agent website to illustrate what an AI agent hands to its users. The companies, matters, amounts and people in it are invented. It has no legal, accounting or commercial value.

> Fictional document, produced for the demonstration. Reading is on the content, not the layout: a crooked scan, a photo taken on a phone or a submission with no reference are handled like the others.

What is extracted from each document

Element	What it allows
Account number	Attachment to the contributor's record
Period and amount	Attachment to the right instalment
Nature of the document	Certificate, statement, letter, evidence of circumstances
Receipt timestamp	It is what will count if the contributor disputes a deadline

The month's result

Situation	Volume	What is handed to the caseworker
Matched on their own to the right account and instalment	2,852 — 92 %	Nothing to do: the document is on file
Incomplete reference or namesake	191	176 found by cross-checking — proposed attachment and two candidate accounts side by side
Document of a different nature from the one expected	57	Request letter written, naming the document expected and attaching the example
Total received	3,100	—

A contributor does not send the wrong document out of ill will: he sends it because he was asked for "supporting evidence". Naming the document and attaching the example halves second submissions.

What it gives back to the service, and to the contributor

Measure	Before	With the agent
Filing and matching documents	3 staff days a week, across two people	Half a day
Document available on file	The following week	The day it is sent
"Did you receive my documents?" chasers	340 a month	41

> A document on file the day it is sent prevents the one reminder too many — the one that arrives after the contributor has replied, and the leading cause of complaint in a collection service.
