> Fictional document — demonstration example
> This document is produced by the Blue Lemon Agent website to illustrate what an AI agent hands to its users. The companies, matters, amounts and people in it are invented. It has no legal, accounting or commercial value.

> Fictional document, produced for demonstration. No rule of law is quoted from memory. Three reasons, each sufficient: a statute changes, a statute applies subject to conditions, and a legal answer given by a tool commits the company with no decision.

Source of the answer	Questions	Share
Your own contracts	21	45%
Your adviser's writings on file	9	19%
Your practice in comparable cases	4	9%
Passed to an adviser	13	28%
Total	47	100%

> Thirty-four questions of forty-seven had an answer in the company's own documents. That is no feat of the tool: it is that most of a company's legal questions bear on its own commitments.

The three reasons not to quote a statute

Reason	Consequence if ignored
A statute changes	A renumbered or repealed reference looks right
A statute applies subject to conditions	The article depends on the situation, not the question
A tool's answer commits with no decision	It gets applied and nobody knows where it came from

What goes to the adviser with the 13

Element	Provided?
The question as it was asked	Yes
The contracts concerned	Yes
The relevant clauses, quoted	Yes
Internal precedents	Yes
A suggested answer	No

An assembled file turns an advice question into a verification. It is the only place where the tool saves time on a billed activity, and it does so without substituting for anyone.
