Fictional document — demonstration example

This document is produced by the Blue Lemon Agent website to illustrate what an AI agent hands to its users. The companies, matters, amounts and people in it are invented. It has no legal, accounting or commercial value.

Fictional document, produced for the demonstration. No real decision is cited here: the attachment shows the FORM of a research note, what it carries and what it opens. In a real note, every line points to the document as published, openable in one click from the note.

What the note carries, in this order

Part	Content	Why it is there
Applicable provisions	In the wording in force at the date of the facts	A provision amended since the facts does not apply to the file — the first pitfall of a search done in haste
Decisions retained	Court, date, full reference, extract of reasoning	The extract, never a summary of the extract

Part	Content	Why it is there
Sorting	Three families: supporting the classification, departing from it, scope later discussed	Gives the state of the question rather than a list
Flag at the top	One decision retained was followed by a reversal	At the top and not in a footnote
Sources	The published document, openable from the note	A decision not read in the library is not cited

A reversal is when a higher court abandons the solution it had been applying. Both decisions are given in order, with their dates and their reasoning — the judge settles their scope in thirty minutes, sources open, instead of half a day of searching.

The citation rule — and why it has no exception

Situation	What the agent does	What it hands over
The decision is in the reference library	It is cited with its full reference and its extract of reasoning	The document, openable in one click
The decision is not there	It is not cited — no approximate reference, no reconstructed number	The question raised, where it is to be searched, and the access request already drafted
The provision changed since the facts	Both wordings are given, with the date of entry into force	The list of pending cases whose facts predate it

The time this moves, across the 380 searches of the year

Step	Before	After	Who does it
