Fictional document — demonstration example

This document is produced by the Blue Lemon Agent website to illustrate what an AI agent hands to its users. The companies, matters, amounts and people in it are invented. It has no legal, accounting or commercial value.

Fictional document, produced for demonstration. No page is amended. Published opening hours are a commitment of the authority.

| Quarter          | Slots opened on Friday afternoons | Taken | Rate |
|------------------|-----------------------------------|-------|------|
| May to July 2026 | 96                                | 0     | 0%   |

The two sources, contradicting each other

| Source                     | Date         | What it says                                                  |
|----------------------------|--------------|---------------------------------------------------------------|
| Documents counter diary    | Current      | Open on Friday afternoons                              |
| Website information page   | 2023         | "The documents service is closed on Friday afternoons" |
| Internal organisation note | January 2026 | Opening extended to Friday afternoons                  |

The page dates from 2023 and the hours changed in January 2026. In between, nobody made the connection — and zero slots taken out of ninety-six alerts nobody, because an unbooked slot produces neither an error nor a complaint.

What it frees up, if the page is corrected

| Element                      | Value                 |
|------------------------------|-----------------------|
| Slots per quarter            | 96                    |
| Slots per week               | ≈ 8                   |
| Current wait                 | 9 weeks        |
| Estimated effect on the wait | ≈ 3 weeks less |

The estimate is worth what its assumptions are worth: it assumes demand absorbs those slots at the same rate as the others. Plausible at a saturated counter, and not guaranteed.

The three pages out of step with the diaries

| Service         | What the page announces  | What the service does | Direction of the gap  |
|-----------------|--------------------------|-----------------------|-----------------------|
| Documents       | Closed Friday afternoons | Open since January    | Announces less |
| Registry office | Walk-in mornings only    | All day since March   | Announces less |
| Planning        | Appointments only        | Tuesday drop-ins      | Announces less |

All three gaps point the same way: the authority offers more than it announces. That is the opposite of the usual problem, and it never surfaces on its own — nobody complains about a service they do not know exists.

execution is announced only for the configuration explicitly described and accepted in the quotation; the applicable isolation depends on the deployment mode set out in the quotation, no dedicated isolation being presumed; the encryption mechanisms in transit and at rest, their components and key management are those documented for the architecture chosen; roles and permissions are configured and accepted for the identities and systems actually connected; the events logged, their content, their retention period and who may access them are defined for the deployment chosen.
