Fictional document — demonstration example

This document is produced by the Blue Lemon Agent website to illustrate what an AI agent hands to its users. The companies, matters, amounts and people in it are invented. It has no legal, accounting or commercial value.

Fictional document, produced for the demonstration. All the work of an order is done except the final click: that click commits the company's money, and it belongs to a validation point or a written mandate.

What retyping costs today

Part of an order	Duration	Share of the cycle
Copying the part number from one tool to another	9 min	45 %
Catalogue search and price check	5 min	25 %
Attaching to the file and updating the ERP	4 min	20 %
Approval and sending	2 min	10 %
Total	20 min	100 %

What the sequence does, in order

Step	Detail	What it catches
Reading the part number	In the engineer's report, including photographed on the label of the part	Part numbers never retyped correctly
Check against the contract catalogue	Price compared with the negotiated list	Price rises that went unnoticed
Stock check before ordering	37 parts on the shelf out of the month's 410	€4,180 of pointless orders
Building the order and attaching it	Purchase order attached to the file, ERP updated	The trace, built while acting
Filed as a draft	On the portal, not sent	The commitment stays with the company

The gain, and the figure that weighs more than it

Measure	Before	With the agent	Effect
Data entry across the tools	45 % of the cycle — 9 min	6 % — 1 min 15	53 hours a month across 410 orders
Delay before the order is placed	2.4 days	To be decided: validation or mandate	63 visits a month wait for a part
Contracts renegotiated on that ground in 12 months	9 clients, 3 departures	—	3 contracts at €4,800/year — €14,400 of recurring revenue lost

> Data-entry time is an organisational gain; the delay before placing the order is a commercial one. The second is visible to the client, and it is what decides whether a service contract is renewed — not the first.
