Fictional document — demonstration example

This document is produced by the Blue Lemon Agent website to illustrate what an AI agent hands to its users. The companies, matters, amounts and people in it are invented. It has no legal, accounting or commercial value.

Fictional document, produced for the demonstration. The first use paid for the compliance file; the five that followed inherited it. It is not the uses that got shorter: it is the file that no longer had to be rebuilt.

The six uses and what each gave back

Use	Annual volume	Measured gain
Member questions about statements	138,000	First answer: 4 days → 20 minutes
Income protection claims	8,560	22 days → 6 days
Checking member companies' onboarding documents	1,900 files	Completeness checked on the day of filing
Complaints	4,200	File rebuilt before the first reading

Use	Annual volume	Measured gain
Annual review of group schemes	1,900 contracts	Amendment / configuration gaps raised before the review
Maintaining the operating documentation	Continuous	It is what the auditor will read in March

Go-live lead time, use after use

Use	Request → go-live	What explains it
First	11 weeks	Compliance file written in full
Second	3 weeks	File inherited, only the use specification to write
Sixth	12 days	Specification signed in 2 days, go-live in 10

What a use must produce to exist

Element of the use specification	Who writes it	Who signs it
Purpose, in plain language	The agent, from the business request	The requesting department
Fields requested and fields needed, with the gap quantified	The agent	The compliance department
Authorised roles	The agent, from the matrix	The security officer
Retention period	The agent, from the register	The compliance department

Across the six uses, the initial request carried 34 fields on average and the signed specification kept 12. None of the six asked to reopen a removed field: the business lost nothing, and compliance ruled on the document in 2 days on average against 5 weeks before.

> A use has access to no data until its specification is signed. This is not an after-the-fact check, it is the condition of access — and it is exactly what an auditor seeks to verify.
