Fictional document

Fictional document — demonstration example

This document is produced by the Blue Lemon Agent website to illustrate what an AI agent hands to its users. The companies, matters, amounts and people in it are invented. It has no legal, accounting or commercial value.

Fictional document, produced for demonstration. A meeting is where people think aloud; minutes are a document that circulates.

Element	Attributed?
A decision	Always
A commitment, an action	Always
An opinion	Never
An objection	Never
A hesitation, a naive question	Never
A position stated then abandoned	Never

What commits carries a name; what searches does not.

What attributing opinions produces

Behaviour	Effect on the meeting
Half-formed ideas stop being tested	Fewer ideas
People stop changing their position	Fewer corrections
People say nothing when unsure	Fewer useful objections

Disagreements

Mentioned — "the decision was taken despite an objection on the timing" — without saying who raised it. The existence of the disagreement is useful information; its author is not.

Scope of this document: the service operated by Blue Lemon Agent. For an agent deployed at your premises, the applicable location is that of the architecture set out in the quotation and verified before commissioning; local execution is announced only for the configuration explicitly described and accepted in the quotation; the applicable isolation depends on the deployment mode set out in the quotation, no dedicated isolation being presumed; the encryption mechanisms in transit and at rest, their components and key management are those documented for the architecture chosen; roles and permissions are configured and accepted for the identities and systems actually connected; the events logged, their content, their retention period and who may access them are defined for the deployment chosen.
