Fictional document — demonstration example

This document is produced by the Blue Lemon Agent website to illustrate what an AI agent hands to its users. The companies, matters, amounts and people in it are invented. It has no legal, accounting or commercial value.

Fictional document, produced for the demonstration. Inventory coverage is the first indicator on the dashboard, ahead of any score. An asset missing from an inventory is invisible: it is neither healthy nor fixed, it is unknown — and that line is read at the top of the report, never in a footnote.

What the group declares, entity by entity

Entity	Inventory current	Usable versions	Named owners	What the agent can affirm
Head office — 4 group assets	yes	3 of 4	3 of 4	Matching assessed on all 4
Service subsidiary A	yes	complete	complete	Matching assessed
Service subsidiary B	yes	complete	complete	Matching assessed
Manufacturing subsidiary	no	partial	partial	No conclusion — proposed as the first project

Entity	Inventory current	Usable versions	Named owners	What the agent can affirm
Distribution subsidiary 1	no	absent	partial	No conclusion
Distribution subsidiary 2	no	absent	absent	No conclusion

The two missing data points in the group scope, named

Asset	Missing data	Consequence applied
passerelle-identite-mutualisee	version in service unknown	No score. State « under investigation ». Closure blocked.
reporting-reglementaire-herite	owner at head office	The owner is the manufacturing subsidiary; the exception is addressed to it

What the agent has counted for you, and it is what makes the decision takeable: 380 endpoints and 46 servers sit in the three subsidiaries without a current inventory. They are classed out of reach of any conclusion and displayed as such at the top of the report — neither healthy nor fixed: unknown. The agent has also ranked the three inventory projects and proposes starting with the manufacturing subsidiary, the one hosting the asset already known to be out of support. The figure is on the table and the project is ranked: opening it is yours.

Fleet figures for the fictional company Vergaray Participations. They illustrate a common situation in an active holding company; they describe no real group.
