Fictional document

Fictional document — demonstration example

This document is produced by the Blue Lemon Agent website to illustrate what an AI agent hands to its users. The companies, matters, amounts and people in it are invented. It has no legal, accounting or commercial value.

Fictional document, produced for demonstration. No statistics per data-entry officer are produced. An officer who knows they are measured approves faster and looks less — the tool would then have degraded the quality it claims to serve.

Item	Kept?	Why
The proposal made	Yes	Retracing the path
The document and line justifying it	Yes	Checking an entry after the fact
The date	Yes	Chronology
What became of it	Yes	Approved, amended or discarded
Statistics per data-entry officer	No	Would degrade the quality sought
Individual acceptance rate	No	Same reason
Approval time per person	No	Irrelevant

Content	What it indicates
Fields where proposals are most amended	Where the agent is wrong, or where the rule changed
Sources most often unusable	A document format to revisit
Fields most often left empty	Information no document carries

All three indicators point at settings, never at people. That is what makes them usable: a summary that points at someone gets argued with, a summary that points at a field gets fixed.
