Fictional document

> Fictional document — demonstration example
> This document is produced by the Blue Lemon Agent website to illustrate what an AI agent hands to its users. The companies, matters, amounts and people in it are invented. It has no legal, accounting or commercial value.

> Fictional document, produced for demonstration. The draft is not corrected. The agent does not know which of the two figures is right, and silently aligning a reply on the previous one would propagate the error instead of revealing it.

The two sentences

Reply signed 18/01/2026: "The scheme is open to organisations with fewer than ten employees."

Draft of 07/08/2026: "The scheme is aimed at organisations with fewer than twenty employees."

Point of comparison	January	August	Identical?
Scheme concerned	The same	The same	Yes
Correspondent	The same	The same	Yes
Threshold stated	10	20	No

Point of comparison	January	August	Identical?
Act in between	—	—	None found

The two possible explanations

Hypothesis	Consequence	What it takes to decide
The threshold moved, the act is invisible to the agent	Both replies are right at their date	Find the act
One of the two figures is wrong	One of the replies is false	Check the scheme's source

> What the flag prevents: a correspondent putting the two letters side by side. Two replies signed by the same administration, to the same recipient, on the same scheme, with two figures — that is not a situation an explanation gets you out of.

What the flag leaves you to decide

What the agent does	What it brings you
The two replies are set side by side, with their date and their figure	The drafter sees at a glance which of the two figures is right, and it is the drafter who settles it
The gap is presented as it stands, with no automatic alignment on the earlier reply	An aligned error becomes a coherent error, therefore invisible: here it stays visible and is corrected once and for all
The flag arrives before the letter goes out	Your signature circuit loses not a single day, and the two letters never end up side by side on the representative's desk
