Fictional document

Fictional document — demonstration example

This document is produced by the Blue Lemon Agent website to illustrate what an AI agent hands to its users. The companies, matters, amounts and people in it are invented. It has no legal, accounting or commercial value.

Fictional document, produced for demonstration. Reality on the ground did not shift the day somebody reordered a menu.

Period	Option at the top	Share of records
Before the reordering	Former 1st option	29%
After the reordering	New 1st option	31%

Why the default wins

The person's situation	Effect
The field is mandatory	The form will not validate without a value
They do not know the answer	Contact from a colleague, trade show six months ago
The first option is right there	It is the shortest path to saving

A dashboard saying 31% of contacts come from the web describes a menu, not a market.

The agent measures the gap between the default's share and the other options', field by field, and never counts that value as data.

Scope of this document: the service operated by Blue Lemon Agent. For an agent deployed at your premises, the applicable location is that of the architecture set out in the quotation and verified before commissioning; local execution is announced only for the configuration explicitly described and accepted in the quotation; the applicable isolation depends on the deployment mode set out in the quotation, no dedicated isolation being presumed; the encryption mechanisms in transit and at rest, their components and key management are those documented for the architecture chosen; roles and permissions are configured and accepted for the identities and systems actually connected; the events logged, their content, their retention period and who may access them are defined for the deployment chosen.
