Fictional document — demonstration example

This document is produced by the Blue Lemon Agent website to illustrate what an AI agent hands to its users. The companies, matters, amounts and people in it are invented. It has no legal, accounting or commercial value.

Fictional document, produced for demonstration. In the vast majority of cases, the agent is the one that got it wrong.

| Stage | What exists |
|---|---|
| Pre-fill | The agent's proposal |
| Reading and correction | The proposal and the correction |
| Validation | The report alone — the proposal disappears |

Why the proposal does not survive

| If it were kept | What would follow |
|---|---|
| A machine / declaration gap would exist | It would be consultable |

| If it were kept | What would follow |
|---|---|
| It would be comparable between people | It would end up being looked at |
| It would mean nothing | The agent's error rate would become somebody's correction rate |

Actual causes of the gaps

| Cause | Whose fault? |
|---|---|
| Meeting cancelled without being deleted | The agent's |
| Document opened for two minutes | The agent's |
| Task done leaving no trace | The agent's |

| What is kept | Value |
|---|---|
| Overall correction rate, no names | 34% |
| Correction rate per person | Never |

One line in three proposed is wrong: that is the agent's quality measure, not the teams'.
