Fictional document — demonstration example

This document is produced by the Blue Lemon Agent website to illustrate what an AI agent hands to its users. The companies, matters, amounts and people in it are invented. It has no legal, accounting or commercial value.

Fictional document, produced for demonstration. "890 messages handled" proves the agent right without proving anything: a draft edited by 80% cost more time than it saved, and it counts the same in a send rate.

Outcome	Drafts	Share
Sent unchanged	280	23%
Sent after editing	610	49%
Not sent	350	28%
Total	1,240	100%

What the 610 edits were correcting

Reason	Corrections	Fixed at source?

A lead time announced without having it from the company	187	Yes
A closing formula too familiar	134	Yes
A case reference quoted wrongly	91	Yes
Other	198	No

The edit rate went from 81% to 69% in one quarter, and it is the only progress the agent can demonstrate — it concerns its defects, not its volume.

Why this fall is a real fall

What brings the rate down	What you gain
The three correction reasons are fixed at source	412 of the 610 corrections concerned them: that much review time handed back to your teams, quarter after quarter
The hard cases are prepared like the rest	The gain covers the messages that are expensive to write, not only the ones that go out quickly
The text stays precise and complete	Writing shorter or vaguer would drop the figure without giving you anything: a draft nobody edits because it says nothing gets rewritten from scratch

Scope of this document: the service operated by Blue Lemon Agent. For an agent deployed at your premises, the applicable location is that of the architecture set out in the quotation and verified before commissioning; local execution is announced only for the configuration explicitly described and accepted in the quotation; the applicable isolation depends on the deployment mode set out in the quotation, no dedicated isolation being presumed; the encryption mechanisms in transit and at rest, their components and key management are those documented for the architecture chosen; roles and permissions are configured and accepted for the identities and systems actually connected; the events logged, their content, their retention period and who may access them are defined for the deployment chosen.
