Fictional document

Fictional document — demonstration example
This document is produced by the Blue Lemon Agent website to illustrate what an AI agent hands to its users. The companies, matters, amounts and people in it are invented. It has no legal, accounting or commercial value.

Fictional document, produced for demonstration. No sender, no subject and no reason appears here — only the count.

Type of address	Handled by the agent?	Why contact@, billing@, support@, recruitment@	Yes	Addressed to the company, several people already have access
firstname.lastname@	No	It contains a person's life

The person's agreement is not enough: a personal mailbox also contains the messages of those who write to them — a client confiding a difficulty, a colleague mentioning sick leave, a candidate. They gave no agreement, and they do not know the agent is there.

The 41 personal messages that arrived at the service address

Handling	Done?
Recognised by sender and subject	Yes
Opened	No
Summarised	No
Filed	No
Counted in reply times	No
Reported as a count	Yes

Recognising that a message is personal does not require reading it. It is the only thing the agent does with these forty-one.

Scope of this document: the service operated by Blue Lemon Agent. For an agent deployed at your premises, the applicable location is that of the architecture set out in the quotation and verified before commissioning; local execution is announced only for the configuration explicitly described and accepted in the quotation; the applicable isolation depends on the deployment mode set out in the quotation, no dedicated isolation being presumed; the encryption mechanisms in transit and at rest, their components and key management are those documented for the architecture chosen; roles and permissions are configured and accepted for the identities and systems actually connected; the events logged, their content, their retention period and who may access them are defined for the deployment chosen.
